Dear Chairman Culberson and Ranking Member Honda:

The undersigned geoscience organizations and our tens of thousands of Earth, ocean, and space scientist members thank you for recognizing the value of all of the National Science Foundation's Directorates by taking a balanced and inclusive approach to funding the agency.

Each Directorate at NSF makes vital contributions to the national interest. NSF's Geoscience Directorate, for example, is a major source of U.S. funding for Earth, ocean, atmospheric, and polar research and education. Investments in geoscience research and education help to ensure our nation's economic strength, public well-being, and national security.

Thank you again for your support for the geosciences and we look forward to continuing to work with you to strengthen the American scientific enterprise.

Sincerely,
